Comment Of The Day

MR AMORY'S SUCCESS

FIRE British public has, for 👢 a long time been suffering from a spate of forecasts made by those "in the know" about the timing of the general elections and the outcome of the Budget. It is now generally conceded that the May election forecasters have been wrong in their predictions, but the general consensus of opinion that there would be taxation reductions on a generous scale when Mr Heathcoat Amory presented his Budget has proved correct.

Lively debate on how the reductions should be applied was inevitable. The main question most commentators discussed was not whether there should be relief this year, but how large it should be. The Opposition, of course, argued that any reduction would be in the form of a sop for the electorate,

Substantial

S it has turned out the tax reliefs have been substantial, particularly when compared with the minor reductions since the war and there is no doubt that they will prove of benefit to the individual and industry as a whole.

Britain has long been accustomed to successive credit squeezes; nusterity budgets have been the order of the day since the end of the war. Now some of the postwar credits, a very sore point, are to be repaid. There is a reduction in income tax. There is a reduction in the price of beerand there is the restorntion of investment allowances in respect of capital expenditure,

The Budget, is therefore. generally hailed as an achievement worthy of a liberal-minded Chancellor. There have been complaints, but the other parliamentary party leaders have been hard put to find convincing nixuments of sufficient importance to impress the man in the street.

Pubs Benefit?

THE Liberal leader, Mr Jo Grimond, could describe the Budget as a "benefit for the pubat" Possibly Mr Grimond was taken off balance because it is hardly likely that either the pubs or the breweries will benefit to the extent of the implication. Mr Gaitskell made few comments, mainly endeavouring to blame the Government for its "slack economy."

Britain's economic position is better than it has been for many years because of the Government's realistic attitude towards the country's domestic and foreign affairs. If this had not been so then the Chancellor could not have produced a Budget which consolidates an achievement built up on sound financial methods which have been pursued over the last two years.

If this Budget is a failure then we would like to know what constitutes success. Certainly later in the week the Conservatives were successful in the Galloway byeelection with a majority enough to worry Mr Gait-

The satellite, called Dis-coverer II, included a 195pound recovery capsule or reentry vehicle containing five film packs to measure cosmic ray radiation in outer space. The plan was to shoot the full 440-pound "payload" in orbit around the earth. Then, when sufficient orbital data had been collected, an attempt would be made to detach the 195-pound re-entry vehicle from the satellite and bring it back through the earth's atmosphere.

U.S. CHARGE AGAINST HK FIRM DENIED Alleged Payment Of Money

A local transportation firm this morning denied a U.S. Congress Subcommittee's allegation that an American official had received US$500 from them, just before the firm was awarded a US$275,000 contract to provide tugs and barges for a U.S. foreign aid project in Laos.

Washington, April 13. In Congressional Sub-committee it was nlleged that an American official received US$500 from a Hongkong firm which was later awarded a $275,000 contract to provide tugs and barges for a U.S. foreign aid project in

The official was a former transportation officer of the international cooperation administration mission in

The firm named was Pacific Island Shipbuilding Co. a clvision of the Hongkong transportation Co, which won the contract two and a half years

The sub-committee Chairman, Mr Porter Hardy alleged that four American firms who wanted to bid on the barge and tug contract were "frozen out" because of a "quickie" deadline which only foreign companies in the Far East could meet.

Mr Hardy said the ICA mission ignored an order from its Washington Headquarters to extend the bidding deadline so the American firms could qualify.

However, Carter Depaul, former Chief of the ICA mission in Laos, said the "urgency" of the project made the action necessary.

26-year-old Alan Quy had promised his son Steven a snake as a pet. So it seemed like a golden opportunity when he and his working party spotted a 2 feet long specimen on the railway embankment near Rayleigh station, Essex. Everybody on the spot agreed it was a grass snake (Natrix Natrix, common in England) so he chased it, vainly. Three hours later, it came back; and this time Alan picked it up, but a sharp nip on the finger caused second thoughts, and he and his mates killed it. On his way home to Barking, his finger began to swell, then his arm, then his tongue; by the time he got to Oldchurch hospital, Romford, he was critically ill. But he managed to describe the snake, immediately identified as an adder (Viperus Berus). An SOS was sent to the snakeserum bank at the North Middlesex Hospital, and a police car speeded across London with a curative dose. 14 hours later, Alan woke up in hospital with a splitting headache, a swollen finger, but an unshaken determination to get his son a snake - from a pet shop. ## Delay Causing Concern

Washington, April 13. Eisenhower and Mr John Foster Dulles have again dea decision on State's future — but diplomats and politiclans here feel that the decision cannot be delayed much longer.

Hitherto, there has been widespread support in Congress for the way in which the President and Mr Dulles have handled what has become a national dilemma. Democratic members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee have joined with Republicans in warm references to the Secretary of State's courageous battle to overcome cancer.

For the most part memthe opposition party have agreed with the President that there should be a thorough and reliable medical estimate of Mr Dulles' condition before deciding whether he con return to the day-to-day conduct of the nation's foreign

Allied Policies

There is, however, considerable concern in many quarters about the effect on allied policies of continued delay.

Mr Dulles' sudden return to Walter Reed army hospital from Florida yesterday prepared many officials for a possible day of decision immediately. The sense of anticipation was heightened by President Eisenhower's simultaneous return from Augusta, Georgia, and his decision immediately to drive to the hospital to talk to Mr Dulles.

Philadelphia, April 13.

"healthy father-son relationship" has developed between the Duke of Edinburgh and Prince Charles, according to an article in today's Saturday Evening Post.

It said this had been brought about by the young prince, heir to the throne, being educated with others of his own age at a preparatory school.
The magazine article, entitled "Making a Man out of Charlie", declared: "Frankness compels the admission that Philip is not everybody's idea of an ideal father. "The ways of young children tend to irritate him. But

Wins British Boxing Title

Nottingham, April 13. Bobby Neill won the British featherweight boxing title here tonight, defeating his fellow - Scot Charlie Hill, holder of the inside championship, the distance.

The referee stopped the fight be accepted until the closing date to be in the ninth of the scheduled 15 rounds. Only Hill's tremendous announced later. courage kept him going to that point, for he was down ten times during the fight.

From the third round onwards Nelll was right on top, ripping in short hooks which staggered and dropped Hill for count after count. In a desperate attempt to save. his titles. Hill cut both Nell's eyes.

REMARKABLE MOBILITY

But though Hill landed good punches, Nelli was able to take them and still bored into the nttack. His mobility was remarkably good, considering his twice-broken left leg, which once threatened to ruin his ring career.

Hill was down in the third round and again in the fourth, and from then on it was a entalogue of knockdowns from which he rose with his courage unimpaired, but with defeat approaching nearer cach time. —Reuter.

He was Gary Snyder, 28 years old and San Francisco-born, one of the leading lights of the so-called "Beat Generation" school of poetry.

"The beat generation was part of a nationwide need, even thirst, of some people to get away from arbitrary, selfcentred thinking where the onphasis is on material things and

"Getting Away"

"The interest in Zen also is a symptom of getting away from such unproductive and even destructive attitudes."

Snyder lived in the Shokoku Temple in Kyoto from May, 1956, to August, 1957, studying Japanese and seeking the great "inner truth" which the teachers of Zen say is buried deep in the mind,

Zen Buddhism got its start in Ching in the sixth century A.D. here. and moved to Japan where it now has millions of adherents.

It no longer exists in China but has caught the fancy in varying degrees, of such Western world figures as novelist Aldous liuxley, historian Arnold Toynbee and psychiatrists C. G. Jung and Karen Hotney.

Dr D. T. Suzuki, often described as the world's greatest nuthority on Zen, called it a philosophy in which life 'assumes a fresher, deeper and more satisfying aspect."

Riddles The master can only guide the student with clues; which may be in the form of asking a "koan," or impossible riddle.

The master may clap his hand, and say: "This is the round of two hands clapping; what is the sound of one hand clapping?"

If the student can come up with the "answer" to a number of these riddles, perhaps in 10 years or so he will experience the sudden spark that reveals answers to the "who, what and why" mysteries of life.

Snyder put it this way: "Poetry is always trying to make the world fresh again. Zen is trying to do the same. It tries to shake up the whole personality so we can see the flowers and the sunsets, and also the bables that are born blind, the suffering and disasters of the

"Wine Is Cheap'

Snyder has been practising Zen for the past eight or nine

He guesses there are only about a dozen serious Zen students each in Ban Francisco, Los Angeles and New York.

But no one can truly practise Zen in this country, he said, because there are no Zen masters

"Zen has caught on in San Francisco for a number of reasons," Snyder said, "There is a strong pacifist and anarchistic intelligentsia here, Many World War II conscientious objectors settled here."

In addition, he said, many graduate students have left their universities because they felt there was "nothing creative" going on there,

Snyder added: "They come to San Francisco where it is more congenial, the climate is better and the wine is cheap."

New Cotton Market

New York, April 13. The cotton market today opened steady and maintained small net gains through most of a quiet | Yaumati .. 9319 P419 trading session.

Houston spot house buying of December and new July contracts combined with a mill and commission house demand in keeping surplus hedge and other offerings out of the ring, Nourby deliveries gave a little ground at the close under May Bouldation while later months finished near—the day's best levels. The final range was four lower to 10 points higher. Opening prices were off 2 to up five points. Now Orleans closed up 1 to 7 points.

Opitmistic accounts from the dry: goods - trade, along with a | broadening demand in the spot market, helped to shape market sentiment.

NEW HIGH

Strackle operations accounted for part of the business, including purchases of December against sales of July. March, 1980, delivery touched a new high for the season. Memphis reports noted more active mill interest in new crop cotton last week. Sales of higher and low grades were made for extended shipment.

Sir,-Sorry that I am unimpressed by Elizabeth Taylor's "art" in "Cat On A Hot Tin Roof". In my opinion she remains throughout the spoilt young thing and never the wilful sensuous Maggle The Cat whose love for Brick is at once rapacious, passionate and purposeful.

Paul Newman as Brick is "callow and absurdly unprepared for such a searching test", and Burl Ives seems temperamentally miseust na Big Daddy. The homosexualit theme is suppressed, and Brick's problem appears that of "immaturity" and the rea trouble between father and son that of "non-communicability" There is little doubt as to where Big Daddy's affection hes, and one wonders why they take such a long time (and it certainly doesn't need the help of Big Daddy's concer) to reach their "reconciliation". I admire even less Susan Hayward's award-winning performance in "I Want To Live!", which strikes me as shallow, specious and self-conscious, Maybe the script is partly to blame; it is difficult to be interested in the fate of a girl so immersed in sin without knowing the exact reason why she -----has, an boaro-bad and at the same line persuaded" unt she is incapable of cillous murder. It started at 2 a.m. and by 11 s.m. Queen's Road was impassible. Nobody could walk to the Club or the Barracks. The huge drains became surcharged and every small lane to the Praya was transformed into a channel washed by rushing yellow water.
